Duqu was actively spying on digital certificate issuing authority in Hungary The exposed malware was abandoned by its originators and added to a blacklist database of anti virus software After that initial discovery Duqu had been out of the spotlight for almost four years until one of the biggest names in cyber security Kaspersky Lab announced that it recently detected the presence of the Duqu malware Duqu was always after the high profile targets but this time the malware was definitely in the wrong place Duqu had been found alive and well within Kaspersky Lab s very own corporate computer network That discovery had big implications not only for the ways anti virus software detects intrusions but also for Kaspersky Lab itself Usually malware after being detected has no means of fighting back It was not the case with Duqu Two years after its exposure the Duqu malware had its revenge In 2017 the USA UK and some other European countries issued a ban on the use of Kaspersky Lab computer security software on their government and military computers Their decision was based on information presented to them by the originators of the Duqu malware which had been quietly stealing data from inside of Kaspersky Lab s corporate computer network In an unbelievable turn of events detection of malware by one of the most recognizable names in information security industry led to a removal of Kaspersky Lab s anti virus software from computers that by association require the most protection because they keep top secrets and constantly targeted by adversaries To better understand how it could have happened we need to start exploring the story about the Duqu malware the only malware that had its revenge Online! John Dvorak,Chris Pirillo,Wendy Taylor,2004 A perfect gift for any Internet user whatever their level of experience bull Written in a straight to the point understandable format in jargon free language by some of the most popular personalities in the field bull Backed by a massive marketing campaign including TV radio print and online appearances by the authors Mobile Security Products for Android Philipp Kratzer,Christoph Gruber,Andreas Clementi,David Lahee,Philippe Rödlach,Peter Stelzhammer,2014-10-14 We have once again tested security products for smartphones running Google s Android operating system Our report covers details of the products made by leading manufacturers Smartphones represent the future of modern communications In 2013 more than 1 billion smartphones were sold a further milestone in the advance of these devices¹ A study published by Facebook emphasises the importance of smartphones in our lives about 80% of users make use of their smartphone within 15 minutes of waking up each day At the same time the traditional function of a telephone is becoming less and less important The high quality of integrated cameras means that the smartphone is increasingly used for photography As well as with photos users trust their devices with their most personal communications such as Facebook WhatsApp and email This brings some risks with it as such usage makes the smartphone interesting for criminals who attempt to infect the device with malware or steal personal data There is also the danger brought by phishing attacks These days the use of security software on a PC or laptop is seen as essential However many smartphone users do not yet have the same sense of responsibility even though their devices store personal data private photos Internet banking information or even company data As modern smartphones are often expensive to buy they are also an attractive target for thieves Top quality smartphones cost several hundred Euros As it is not possible to physically prevent them from being stolen they must be made less attractive to thieves Consequently many of today s security products contain not only malware protection but also highly developed theft protection functions which make the device less
